"Past Tense" Christians
There is no Such Being
You hear a person say occasionally—"I was baptized Methodist or Lutheran or Baptist, but I have not attended church since I came here five, or seven, years ago. However, I still believe in Christianity."
Is that Indifference a Sign of Belief Past Tense Christianity means nothing, either to God or to Country. Don't allow your faith to wither through indifference to church worship.
—TOMORROW.

SCIENCE DEFEATS DENTIST'S SCHEME TO ESCAPE CHAIR
Original of Craig Kennedy Tells How Waite's Crime Was Detected
NEW YORK. "When Dr. Arthur Waite, a New York dentist, was hauled to the electric chair for the poisoning of his father-in-law, the scientific investigation of crime was one of its most famous victories."
This is the statement of Dr. Otto H. Schultze, medical assistant to the New York district attorney, when the Tribune has this week revealed as the original of "Craig Kennedy," scientific detective, Arthur B. Reeve's fiction hero.
Wire Rouses Suspicion
"The first suspicion that Waite's father-in-law, who died after a long illness, had come to his end through unnatural causes was when a telegram, 'Suspicion' roused, insist on investigation, was received by the son of the deceased. The telegram was signed with a fictitious name, and with a reference giving the address of the deceased and already had been written out and addressed to the son of the deceased, permission to remove the body from New York to Grand Rapids, where it was to be buried."
Acting on this telegram the son of the deceased went to Grand Rapids and had his family physician perform an autopsy. The physician removed the stomach, sent it to Ann Arbor for analysis, and was informed that the analysis disclosed the presence of arsenic.
Now Waite, pretending himself against a charge of administering arsenic to the deceased, could escape if he could prove that the presence of arsenic was due to the unfortunate food or to poisoning that the food had been an habitual user of arsenic.
"We later learned that he had attempted to prove the underwriter to testify that arsenic had been used in the unfortunate food."
But science closed the opportunity to escape in either of these directions. Parts of the vital organs were shipped back to New York, where they were submitted to chemical analysis and microscopic examination.
Autopsy Proves Murder
"This examination disclosed the presence of arsenic in crystalline form. The largest amount was in

Score for Hughes

PROBABLY less attention than it deserves has been paid to the recent cancellation by agreement of the "Lansing-Ishii" understanding by which the United States in set terms recognized Japanese "special interests" in China. While nobody was ever sure exactly what the agreement meant—Japan regarded it as putting an end to the traditional American policy of the "open door" in China, and spokesmen for the Wilson administration said that it really didn't mean much of anything—it is a matter for congratulation that it has been abrogated. The very vagueness and uncertainty surrounding its meaning were points of danger, likely at any crisis to involve this country and Japan in an exchange of reproach and re-creation based upon differing interpretations, with a period of strained relations the least dangerous potentiality. It seems fairly certain, however, that if there was any meaning to the compact it must have lain in the direction of weakening the defense of Chinese independence which this country has always maintained, and of strengthening the Japanese position for interfering in the affairs of her big and helpless neighbor. In any event it is certain the people of the United States have no wish to be a party even indirectly to any such maneuvers. John Hay's open door policy has never been superseded in the affections of American public opinion. The Lansing-Ishii agreement was a piece of ineptitude, a war measure perhaps pardonable as such, but certainly not of a nature likely to be accepted as authoritatively shifting the channel of our traditional eastern policy. Secretary Hughes in securing amicable cancellation by negotiation with the Japanese seems to have corrected a bad situation, and one has small doubt that as the accomplishment becomes better known and its implications are digested he will receive credit for a genuine diplomatic success.

Plant Useful Trees

NO householder but realizes the blessings of trees. No one builds or buys a house without looking to the matter of trees about it, and if there are none he plans to set out a few. It is a realization of the use of beauty which is too frequently lacking in practical affairs. Too bad that this lively appreciation of trees as necessary ornaments to a pleasant home is not extended a little further to include the recognition of trees as equally valuable and lovely additions to the landscape, and as supremely important deposits to the credit of our national resources. The campaign for tree planting this year which is being urged by the women's clubs of the country will therefore be, if it is as effective as may be hoped, a most important patriotic service—not a showy, brass-band sort of patriotism, but more genuine than much of the flag-waving sort.

Plant trees—and when you plant them, take the trouble to plant varieties that will be useful as well as beautiful. Timber is of supreme importance in the future of this country. It has been a powerful, an indispensable factor in our development thus far, although the wealth of forests with which the country was naturally endowed when the white man came has shoved the vital part they have played into the background of national consciousness. We have used our resources of wood over-lavishly and over-headlessly, forgetting because the supply seemed endless that timber once used cannot be replaced within a generation. Now mounting lumber prices remind us that we are getting to the end of the passage. There are still some good stands of timber, but only a fraction of what there was even a decade ago. In many parts of the country already, a clump of forest of merchantable variety and size is a curiosity. And every year the situation becomes more sharply alarming. We are running out of trees, getting short of the absolutely necessary timber that the growth and continued development of the country requires.

In a generation from now a patch of useful timber will be regarded as a cash asset of importance. Planting such a wood today is therefore very much like putting money in the bank. The difference is chiefly that the deposit required is much less in proportion to the final return than in almost any sort of cash investment. A tree worth a few cents today will be worth many dollars before its planter's days are over.

City folks will, of course, continue to plant trees for shade and beauty. But trees strung out along a town boulevard, after all, will do little to solve the lumber problem of the nation. Where the tree-planting movement must take hold to be effective on a national scale is in the country, where there is land enough available to make a real offensive against the looming timber-famine. In every section of the country where trees will grow at all, probably on almost every farm, there is some considerable acreage that will grow trees excellently, and is fit for not much else. Many useful varieties of trees can be raised where grain or other crops would do practically nothing.

So on three counts one feels that the tree-planting movement must make a wide appeal. It seeks to beautify town and country, to enrich a failing asset of our national resources, and to put good hard dollars into the pockets of those who participate in it. It's a hard combination to beat.

In Search of Romance

BY RUBY DOUGLAS

If some one mentioned Gloria it followed, as Jill did Jack, that some one else would add the name of Glenn Buck. Gloria and Glenn—the names were inseparable.

"Aren't you tired to death of being so prosaically attached to the same girl?" Gloria asked him one evening as they sat together before the family fire doing nothing at all.

Glenn mended the fire before he replied. "Why—no, I don't think so. What makes you ask, Gloria?"

Gloria laughed. "If I hadn't known the answer before I asked the question, I should know it now," she said. "Didn't you notice how eagerly you jumped to reassure me that nothing in which I played a part could possibly tire you?" Her sarcasm was obvious.

Glenn caught the point and echoed her laugh. "We are a bit out and dried for lovers, I'll admit, but—'but what? You are comfortable and you don't need to worry about any one else wanting me. It's habit to go about with me, effort whatever. I—now I am just a girl enough to miss something. I seem to be having no romance, none of the trimmings that story-book girls have. Even so, I'm bored with some eternally coupled off with you. Either you and I are going to get a little less like a stereotyped married couple—or I'm going to seek my romance elsewhere."

Glenn looked at her quickly. He, himself, had thought his marriage had been so conscious of a lack of thrill in their companionship.

"What would you suggest?" he asked, passing the responsibility of solution to her.

"Oh, anything but this sitting by the fire every third evening like Darcy and Jane looking at the embers and the radio or mother's knitting needles."

"You have a saving sense of humor, anyway, Gloria."

"More than you have of romance," she retorted.

Neither of them spoke. Were they going to quarrel? That was the unspoken question to both their minds.

Across the other, from a point many miles distant, came the strains of a violin. The radio apparatus had been set for a station which was broadcasting a wonderful musical program. The music drifted in to the corner of the room so placed as to let the faint notes reach their ears. Some one turned impatiently in her chair. Glenn seemed not to be moved even by that marvelous composition. He sat there and knew its name—did not recognize it.

"The man who wrote that had no romance," he said. "He had no heart, just played it must have been or he could not have interpreted it so appealingly."

"That's right," said Glenn.

Gloria looked at him, displeased in her glance. "Thrilling, aren't you?" she asked.

"I enjoyed it, yes; but I'd just as soon hear McCormack sing 'Parted.' Glenn smiled, unmoved by the girl's impatience.

"Hopeless—hopeless," sighed Gloria. The evening wore on, and when Glenn said goodnight, Gloria felt that she would not be expecting him on Thursday.

"No," he asked, mildly surprised.

"No," she said shortly. "Goodnight."

Thursday came and went. Gloria had hoped that Glenn would telephone to her to consider her decision. She missed him, to be sure, but she would as soon be homesick as to be lonely, and decided.

On Saturday a box of flowers, bearing no card, reached Gloria's hands. She suspected Glenn, but it was not until he came that she knew he had sent them. He had never sent her roses.

A note in the afternoon mail asked her to go down the little alley that led to the country club and beneath the white birch tree on the left of the pathway to look for a message.

Gloria was thrilled like a schoolgirl. Who but Glenn could have done it? And yet it was the last thing she could imagine him doing.

Down the lane she went in her little pajamas. She saw the white bark of the tree, the country club, and her heart began to throb. A merry laugh came from her simple sport sweater.

The stones had been placed freshly against the side of the tree and she removed them to find a piece of paper. All the time Gloria was feeling like a story book heroine, and her heart beat at all her cheeks were flushed, her eyes sparkled.

One after another things like this happened to her. She did not get a message, nor a word from Glenn himself. If these notes, these flowers, this candy, these violin records—all the anonymous attentions were not from him, where did they come from?

"I myself shall be at the white birch tree this afternoon," said the next note. "Come at five o'clock."

Gloria sure that it would be Glenn who would be waiting for her beneath the white birch tree, drove quickly to the place that had become a resting spot. He was there—the writer of the note, the sender of the flowers. It was he who had reached with for years—a friend who Gloria knew very little of.

"Gloria," he cried, when she alighted. "Gloria was disappointed. Her emotions were mixed. She did not know what to say or how to act."

"It is—yes," she asked. "You are not afraid to see me?" Gloria thought his attitude was a bit overdone—a bit theatrical.

"I neither thought it would be some one else," she admitted. "You," he breathed the man, trying to look delighted.

"Then they both laughed. 'Let me take you back,' said Gloria. 'What on earth can you and I do out here in the middle of the night?'

They drove back laughing but neither one mentioned Glenn's name nor gave the other an insight into the real state of his own mind.

As soon as Gloria got home she reached for the telephone in the hall. Her father entered the room before she had time to call the number.

"Gloria," he said—that was his pet name for his only daughter—"I like you very much, today and I'm coming around tonight. I've seen in a light bulb, and he has helped me out very materially. I wish I could tell you what a splendidly dependable fellow that boy is."

Gloria hung her head. "Why, dad, I like a lot myself, you know."

"Yes, yes, I know, my girl, but I don't just the fancy sort of man you young things want. I know the style that goes with it."

Gloria did not reply, but that night she was not bored by the companionship of Glenn. She made him admit that he had sent the flowers, the messages and the attic.

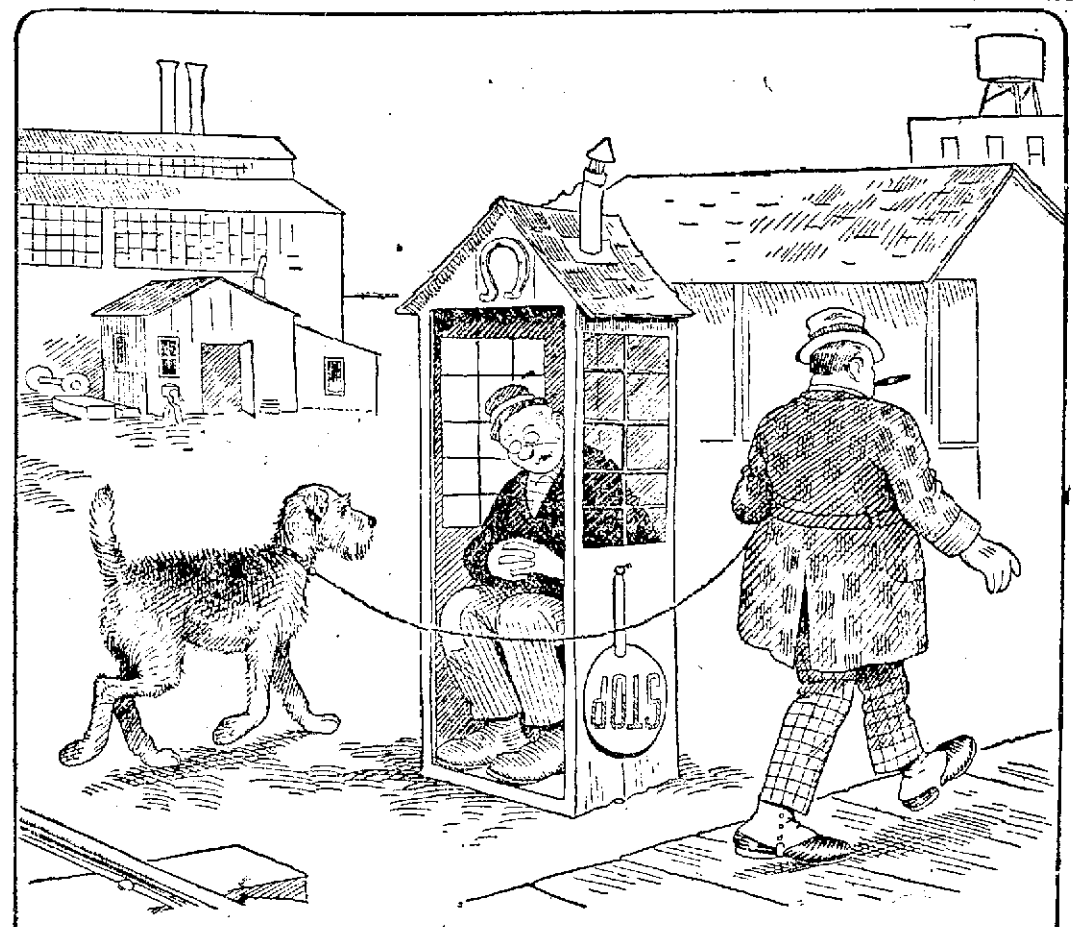

"I just wanted to show you how I feel about you," he said. "It is pretty and well to tell me a little of it, but you really like me, don't you, as I am, do you not?"

Gloria's voice was hoarse with sincerity. "Gloria hid her head on his shoulder, as could have cried when I saw John Hester standing under my birch tree instead of you," she whispered.

THE TONIC TO TAKE IN THE SPRING

Many so-called tonics are merely stimulants. They fail to reach or remedy the real cause which makes you run down or out of sorts.

The safe tonic is a food medicine, and the greatest body builder is Father John's Medicine whose pure food elements are easily taken up by a weakened and run-down system. This old prescription contains the greatest of food medicines which doctors have prescribed for years for their patients. It is guaranteed free from drugs, alcohol or any other kind of stimulants. It builds up the body, enriches the blood. It is a builder and not a brace.

EIGHT HOMERS AS CUBS BEAT PIRATES

Bruins Get Six of Circuit Clouts; Last in Ninth Decides the Game, 12 to 11

BENTLEY LOSES TO BRAVES
ON NATIONAL LEAGUE DEBUT

Phillies Won Hectic Battle from Dodgers, 8 to 7

CHICAGO.—Eight home runs, one less than the world record made twenty-seven years ago were made in the final game between Chicago and Pittsburgh on Friday, Chicago winning, 12 to 11. When George Hartnett, first baseman, slugged out his second homer and crossed the plate with the winning run in the ninth.

The Cubs made six of the homers, while the Pirates gathered two. The highest record of nine runs was made by Cincinnati and Boston in 1891, when the Braves made five and the Reds four.

The Pirates used a trio of pitchers in an effort to stop the bombardment. Glazner, who started the game, was nicked for four homers, while Hartnett, who gave way to Adams after Hartnett had cracked out his first homer, was touched for one. The victory came to the Cubs in the ninth, when Hartnett, batting in the ninth, gave the Cubs their third straight game.

In addition to Hartnett's brace of homers, Glazner added two, while Stutz and Glazner got two each. Glazner and Stutz were the home run pitchers for the Pirates.

In the eighth inning with the score tied 11-11, Stutz pitched to Russell and Hartnett followed with the final smash driving the ball over the right field wall. The Pirates had never scored in the game. Score: Chicago 12, Pittsburgh 11. Chicago: Glazner, Hamilton, Adams and Stutz. Pirates: Glazner, Hamilton, Adams and Stutz.

Boston, 9, Giants, 2
BOSTON.—Jack Bentley of the world champion Red Sox made his National League debut Friday afternoon in the Sox debut game, and was hit hard. Bentley won 2 to 1, making thirteen hits for a total of thirteen runs. The Sox won 9 to 2. Bentley pitched for Boston. Bentley and Glazner, one win each.

Phillies, 8, Dodgers, 7
PHILADELPHIA.—The Phillies won their second game from Brooklyn on Friday, 8 to 7. The Phillies used four pitchers and the Dodgers used six. The Phillies scored runs in the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth innings. The Phillies won 8 to 7. Phillies: Glazner, Hamilton, Adams and Stutz. Dodgers: Glazner, Hamilton, Adams and Stutz.

Reds, 10, Cards, 2
CINCINNATI.—The Reds won their third game from the Cardinals on Friday, 10 to 2. The Reds scored runs in the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth innings. The Reds won 10 to 2. Reds: Glazner, Hamilton, Adams and Stutz. Cards: Glazner, Hamilton, Adams and Stutz.

DO YOU KNOW BASEBALL?

Questions

ONE.—If the two captains are unable to agree on certain ground rules, what happens?

ANS.—Can a batsman step out of the box after the pitcher has gotten into his position on the rubber ready to pitch?

THREE.—With a runner on first, the batsman singles to right and the runner on first tries for third. With two umpires working, who gives the decision at third?

FOUR.—Is it necessary for a pitcher to throw the ball to third or second, when he makes a feint to catch a runner at either of the two bases mentioned?

FIVE.—Does the calling of a balk have any effect on the status of the batter? That is, can he go to first base in any situation which involves the calling of a balk?

ANS.—The umpire makes the ground rules. If the two captains are unable to reach a decision.

TWO.—He is not supposed to, but conditions often arise that make it necessary. He should appeal to the umpire, who will always call time if the pitcher has not started his delivery.

THREE.—The umpire working at the plate should give the decision at third.

FOUR.—It is only necessary that a pitcher complete the throw to first, when he starts such an act. It is not necessary that he do so when making a feint to second or third.

FIVE.—The calling of a balk in no way affects the status of the batsman. He can never go to first base on a called balk.

TRIPLE SEALS ARE HANDED THREE AND
CLIMB TO THIRD

The La Crosse Triple Seals, handed three games by the Colleagues by default, climbed into third place in the city bowling league Friday night, just ahead of the Aroz Shoes, who tripped the Redskins twice.

The Montagues and Moders, first and second leaders, won two games each.

ATHLETIC COUNCIL FAVORS RETURN OF BADGERS TO ROWING

Council Recommends Badgers Be Pitted Against Oarsmen of Great Universities

HOPE BADGERS WILL RETURN TO POUGHKEEPSIE REGATTA

Crew Has Been Maintained for Three Years

MADISON, Wis.—(By The Associated Press).—Return of the University of Wisconsin varsity crew to the Poughkeepsie regatta is unanimously favored by the athletic council.

The council will recommend to the faculty that the Badger oarsmen be given an opportunity in 1924 to pit their strength against the oarsmen of leading American universities, after ten years of non-participation.

This announcement meets the hopes of crew enthusiasts that Wisconsin might again have its eight entered in the eastern rowing classic. It was in 1914 that the medical authorities of the university determined that crew work was detrimental to the health of participants and as a result the Wisconsin crew was disbanded.

For three years a varsity crew has been maintained, but has confined its activities to Lake Mendota. It is now felt by the athletic council, members say, that the eight is sufficiently established to again compete with eastern organizations.

Wisconsin is the only university between the Allegheny and the Rocky mountains which maintains a crew as a major sport and has found difficulty in the last ten years to find competition. Michigan, Chicago, Iowa and Minnesota are reported to be developing an interest and the university here is attempting to organize a mid-western regatta.

The athletic department says that it is probable that the winner of the California-Washington crew race will meet Wisconsin on Lake Mendota en route to Poughkeepsie this spring. The crew from the University of Wisconsin, which was scheduled to meet Wisconsin, has been compelled to cancel the race.

The Wisconsin Junior crew will meet the St. John's cadets on Lake Mendota, May 26, and Culver at Culver on June 2.

GOVERNOR VETOES EMERGENCY FUND FOR TAX BUREAU

Departments Should Keep Within Appropriations Declares Blaine in Message

ADVOCATES ONE-MAN COMMISSION
TO REPLACE PRESENT BOARD

Divided Responsibility Not Conducive to Economy, He Claims

MADISON, Wis.—Governor Blaine Saturday vetoed the emergency appropriation of $17,000 for the Wisconsin tax commission to the legislature, declaring that the obligation of the state clearly demands the disposal of this bill. As far as he could ascertain, the governor said the bill had been introduced by increasing the salaries and cost of conducting an emergency audit of funds.

Blaine said in his message in reply to the legislature that a one-man tax commission is provided in the general revenue tax bill now before the legislature.

It is pertinent at this time to call attention to the fact, he said, that the legislature has displayed great care in its action on the appropriation that divided responsibility in administration does not make for efficiency or economy, and I cannot too strongly emphasize the appropriation for greater responsibility in administration, and it is very clear that such responsibility cannot and must not exist when there is a divided headed board of commission, when essentially all their duties are administrative.

It can also be argued to disapprove of this bill that some department would keep within its appropriation.
At the present session of the legislature a tax commission was granted an appropriation of $15,000 for operation expenses.

"DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS
IN ROBIN HOOD"

This great special film production will begin an indefinite run at the

MOVIES

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS COMING TO MAJESTIC

Douglas Fairbanks, the star and producer of "Robin Hood," made some wild departures from tradition in selecting his supporting cast for this most ambitious film of his brilliant career, and, consequently, there are many anomalies in the personnel of the delineation of the various roles.

Wallace Beery, creator of sneering braggarts and vicious men in general, has the heroic role of King Richard Coeur de Lion in this super production. He has become the defender of right, the same time he has been turning on so ruthlessly in his customary villainous screen characterizations.

Alan Hale is another "heaven" who has turned his back on past wickedness. He plays the part of Little John, Robin Hood's able deputy in his exploits of valor. Little Beery, he, too, is concerned in the redressing of wrong rather than demoralizing truth.

and justice as he has done in so many films.

One of the more interesting transformations is that of Enid Bennett, heretofore associated chiefly with the roles of the neglected wife in modern society stories. She plays the Maid Marion in "Robin Hood" and on the silver screen she presents a veritable portrait of a glorious princess, belonging to an age when men were supposed to fight for women instead of quarreling with them.

These Acadians were driven from France by Louis XV and this phase
of their lives is told by Mr. Ince in a magnificent prologue. In this prologue more than a thousand actors and actresses appear in the introductory scenes.

"Traffic" can be taken as a criterion this production bids fair to be one of the most human offerings of the cinematic art. While dealing with the evils of the drug traffic, it unfolds a beautiful romance in which a reformed drug fiend proves the means of up-lifting a once powerfully strong surgeon who had fallen prey to the menace.

CASINO TODAY

One of the most brilliant scenes ever filmed is that in "Crashin' Thru," starring Harry Carey, in which hundreds of four-maddened horses stampede directly toward the camera, with a roaring prairie fire licking at their heels. It is during this sequence that Carey performs a remarkable feat of horsemanship
when he renches from his saddle while his horse is galloping at full speed and snatches Vola Vale from the path of the onrushing herd.

CASINO APRIL 28

The location is twelve stories above the street. Clinging to the side of the building, two-thirds of the way up, with a dozen pigeons roosting on his head is Harold Lloyd. The crowd below, amused but frightened, watch breathlessly while the spectacular comedian continues his upward climb, overcoming the most difficult and hilarious obstacles. This is just one of the stunts in Harold Lloyd's seven-reel Pathecomedie, "Safety Last," coming to the Casino theater. There have been riotous two-reel comedies produced in the past by master comedians, but never before has one been seen in seven reels that moved at such a fast pace.

"SCARS OF JEALOUSY"

The scenes of "Scars of Jealousy," a modern drama which comes to the Majestic theater Sunday are laid in the mountains of northern Alabama.
The photograph depicts the lives of the little known "Cajons" or mountaineer descendants of the Acadians of Nova Scotia, who were exiled by the British a century ago and took final refuge in the mountains of northern Alabama.

These Acadians were driven from France by Louis XV and this phase
of their lives is told by Mr. Ince in

LAST TIMES TONIGHT</

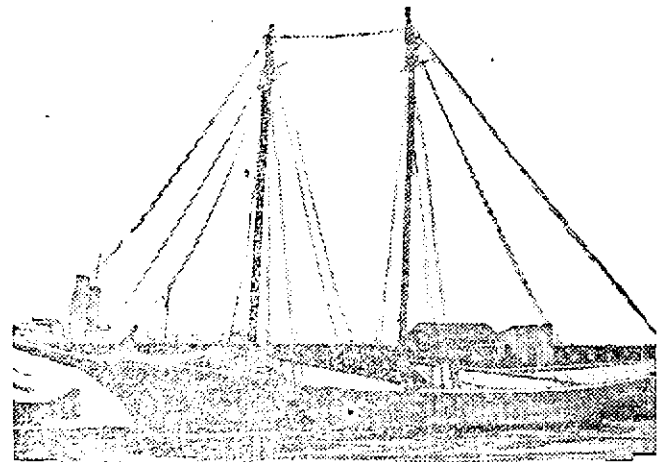

DOG SAVES 92 LIVES — TUT BATHING SUIT, TUT! TUT! — MYSTERY RUM PIRATE — STRIP GOLF!

DISHWASHING DID IT—Miss Mary Meeker, Brooklyn, N. Y., won a prize for her beautiful hands, called by judges the most beautiful in America. They are six and one-half inches long and three wide. Mothers, when you show this to daughter, tell her Miss Meeker credits the beauty of her hands to washing dishes.

SHIP OF MYSTERY—This schooner, with one of her masts broken, her doors broken open, discharged cartridges, shells and fired from stern and a machine gun mounted for action was found adrift at Great South Bay, Long Island. Yes, there were empty whisky cases aboard.

WELL, WELL! STRIP GOLF NOW!—The loser at each hole must strip a piece of clothing. It's best to have the hero pick up the 17th hole. That's where Shirley Vernon, Edith, wife, found it quite necessary for the continuation of the game. This at the Sound View Golf Club, Long Island. Notice that N. the Savage, her opponent, has lost her shoes and stockings.

AUTO TRIES TO GLIDE FALLS—“Autos weren't made for gliding,” this car might have opened after it tumbled on a wet roadway, jumped over an embankment and crashed through the roof of a building 30 feet below at Carthage, near Cincinnati, O.

A MILLION IN DRUGS DESTROYED—This stack of morphine, cocaine, opium, heroin, marijuana cigarettes and opium paraphernalia, valued at $1,000,000, was burned in New York City. It was taken in various raids. Dr. Carleton Simon and Police Commissioner Enright are shown here inspecting it.

HE INVENTED IT—Dr. John Reach Straton, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, New York, breaks into the news probably more frequently than any clergyman in America. This time it is through his new invention, a portable pulpit that fits over the hood of his auto. Dr. Straton is shown here in his new device.

SWISS BEAUTY—Miss Martha Muller was declared the most beautiful woman in all of Switzerland in a nationwide contest.

“FEMINE TOUCH”—Does politics make women less feminine? Here's proof it doesn't. The lady with the powder puff is Congresswoman Huck of Illinois, member of the “feminine bloc,” making ready for a speech in the Capitol.

ON WITH THE DANCE—An old law was invoked to stop Miss Josephine Kryneck and Ted Gill in their attempt to break the marathon dancing record in New York, so they danced into a truck, ferried to New Jersey and continued their dance uninterrupted.

DOCTORS! POOR!—London doctors recently warned women against earrings. Here's how the women of Paris regarded the warning. This woman with young window weights for ear ornaments was photographed at a formal reception.

SUPERIOR—Ruth Goldbaum, Philadelphia girl, has been rated as a “superior child” by University of Pennsylvania professors. Eight, she is credited with the mental development of a high school freshman.
